Frequently Asked Questions

Why do we use CCB?

We believe that belonging to a local church and sharing life with others in that setting is the best way to develop a meaningful relationship with Jesus. CCB is an online tool designed to help us connect with others in the life of Crossroads Community Church (CCC). CCB not only provides you with information about people, groups, and volunteer opportunities at CCC, but also allows you to view your giving records and update your contact information to make sure you receive important communication from the church.

What is CCB?

In the same way that Crossroads.cc is our public internet presence to the world, CCB (ourccc.ccbchurch) is our private intranet tool for those that consider CCC their home church. It is private in the sense that anyone can't just navigate to it (like you can with Crossroads.cc), and browse whatever page you like. CCB requires that you have a username and password to gain access and login.

How do I use CCB?

One of the best ways to start getting familiar with the system is to check out the Guide to CCB. This guide will give you some helpful tips for using the system and direct you to some of the most important help videos and articles. Another great way to learn CCB is to login and spend some time browsing around and checking out all the features.

Who has access to CCB?

Anyone can request to receive a login to CCB. If your email address is in our church database, you can receive an email with a link to activate your account and set your password (You may want to visit the set up CCB to learn how to ensure that the activation email shows up in your inbox rather than your junk folder). The basic level of access to CCB will allow you to update your contact information and view your giving history. Most users who are actively involved in church life will also have access to the online church directory. In circumstances where someone is misusing the online community, the church office may restrict or block access to CCB.

Is CCB Secure?

Church Community Builder works hard at making sure that all of your data is secure (CCB statements on security). CCB also lets you control what information you make available to other users of the online community. While it is encouraged to make more of your information available to other members of CCC for building community, you are able to opt out of the online directory completely or determine what information in your profile is visible to specific sets of people (See guide to CCB) for information on how to control your privacy settings). Furthermore, the church staff is limited to only have access to the information necessary to do their jobs.

Privacy Policy

Crossroads Community Church (CCC) respects your right to privacy and understands your desire to protect personally identifiable information. When you are visiting this website, we collect statistical information concerning where you go on the site, what browser you use, operating system and IP address. This information aids us in the future development of our site in order to meet the various needs of our guests. By using this website, you are giving us your express consent to use the information that we collect about you in the manner described in this policy.

Please be aware, the off-site links CCC provides have no direct affiliation with this website. These sites are not bound by our privacy policy. If you have concerns about any of these third-party sites, please read their privacy policy.

The personally identifiable information we collect is done so by the consent of the individual volunteering said information. (Personally identifiable information is any information that could be used to identify you personally.)

Information submitted to us is only available to CCC and is used only for CCC ministry purposes. For some ministry purposes CCC may communicate to you through a contracted third party service provider. We screen these service providers to ensure that they do not share, sell, or rent individual personal information that we provide to them. CCC will not sell or rent your personal information to third parties.

If you received a mailing from us, (a) your email address is either listed with us as someone who has expressly shared this address for the purpose of receiving Crossroads Community Church information in the future ("opt-in"), or (b) CCC has this information as a result of your individual or family relationship with us. Each email sent contains an easy, automated way for you to cease receiving email from us, or to change your expressed interests. If you wish to do this, simply follow the instructions at the end of any email.

If you have received unwanted, unsolicited email sent via this system or purporting to be sent via this system, please forward a copy of that email with your comments to office@crossroads.cc for review.
